HATS

Are like charity, for they cover a multitude of sins. They are like successful men, for they are always at the top and in the public eye. They are like a poor old man, for they are always worn out; and they are like women in our hours of trial and tribulation, for what would we do without them. The oldest thing in hats is felt. The greatest things in Hats are the bargains at FRED. WARD'S.

Large houses were lifted bodily and turned completely over, thrown upside down on top of neighboring houses. Other large buildings were shoved off their foundations, and others collapsed like a house of cards, and some were blown to atoms. Five of the six large grain elevators in the city were completely wrecked. The property loss is estimated at five million dollars, and may possibly reach a much larger sum. Mr. Spitchwick's partner, Jaye, a stout, fortid-faced man, shruged his broad shoulders.

"Easy on, Spitch, my boy!" he murmured. "No need to make a song of it—and it's your deal."

The young man gave a short laugh.

"Well, you know it now. You have never met me before, and it seems to me that you are scarcely likely to meet me often in future. I'd go to bed now if I were you."

With this the blue-eyed young man nodded curtly, and left the room.

Mr. Spitchwick stood for a few moments staring vacantly at the table, then with a subdued. "Goodnight, all!" went out from the room and upstairs without as much as a stumble.

The others had noted the whole incident with some curricity, but the colloquy had been in such low tones that they had heard nothing distinctly.

"Well, wou know it is you didn't know me either."

"And you want the cash to get home with. Well, sir, that's easily managed."

Mr. Gregg's eyes twinkled as he spoke, but there was an undertone of anxiety which told Mr. Spitchwick the truth. The head of his firm had come to apologize!

"Oh, yes sir, I got your letter!" said Mr. Spitchwick quietly.

The old gentleman patted his traveller on the shoulder.

"You see, we hadn't heard from you for three days takes a lot of making up; but you did it, there's no intake about that, Spitchwick! I came out of my way specially to congratulate you."

Mr. Spitchwick checked a sudden tendency to hysteria. Luck was having a lark with him!

"I am glad you are pleased, sir," said he.

"Now come out and have lunch with me. Early, I know, but I must catch the eleven out, and I dare say you can tackle a bit of chicken and a bottle of something good—in honor of that little order of yourser that I saw quite a decent restaurant as I came along from the tation."

Mr. Spitchwich, with a somewhat unsubstantial memory of tea and toast, immediately assented.

Mr. Gregg chuckled softly as they left the hote!,

"Odd thing," said he, "but I had an application for your job only a day or two ago. Wonder I didn't close with it."

"Indeed, sir," replied Mr. Spitchwick, with a shade of uneaxiness.

What Change in Comforts Electricity Has Wrought.

Few, indeed, are left to recall those distant days preceding the application of steam engines to railroad and steamboat work. But there are plenty who well remember when electricity was considered but a natural phenomenon and a plaything of nature during terrestrial storms. It seems almost incredible, yet it is true, that but thirty year ago electricity was unheard of outside of scientific laboratories.

We had no telephones, no electric railways, no electric fans, no electric railways, no electric fans, no electric motors.

We could not call up anyone on the telephone. The mails and measenger boys did the work. The telegraph was in use, but the lines were few.

"Well," explained the instructor, solemnly, "you see, all our horses 'ave a keen sense of humor, an' as they sometimes 'as sudden fits of laughter when they see the recruits tryin' to ride, we put bands round 'em to keep 'em from bursting their sides!"

The statutes of 1870 contain a minute laying down an age limit of 60 years, but this has been a dead letter for years. The Commission has wide discretionary powers in a matter of this kind. Officials throughout the country are affected.

Prof. Prince pronounces the fish a true salmon and one of the finest he has seen. Its weight was nearly two pounds. The discovery is an important one for sportsmen in the Province.

Monte Carlo

Everyone has heard of Monte Carlo with its gaming tables, where fortunes are made and lost, the gathering place for the wealthy and titled men and women from every nation, who play for high stakes. Few know that the gaming tables support a sovereign principality and furnish the income of a prince. To be sure, Monaca is a very small principality, only leight miles square, with only two towns, Monte Carlo and Condamine, besides Monaco, the capital city. But the prince is not the less extravagant on that account, nor needs to be. He has refurnished the palace, costly roads have been cut through the cliffs and the deep valless spanned with great arches, the mountain sides covered with olives, grapes and lemons.

The first bishop of Monaco was appointed in 1878, for until that time Charles had no funds to spare for bishops. But after the gambling tables had brought him a flood of gold he not only got a bishop but demolished the small 18th century church and built on its site the present imposing cathedral.

Aching Backs and Tired Limbs Need Not be Endured

Aching hacks, tired limbs, attacks of faintness, headaches and backsches, need not be a part of woman's life. There are times when her blood needs special attention, and these times are indicated by one or more of the above symptoms. It is at such times that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are worth their weight in gold to women, for they actually make the rich, red healthgiving blood which makes weak, tired, despondent women, active and strong, and feeling equal to all their household duties. Such a sufferer was Mrs. William Sullivan, Main River, N. B., who says: "I am writing to acknowledge the great good I received through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After my baby was born last summer I was so run down that life was really a burden. I had to drag myself about to do my housework, and every moment was one of trial. If I went upstairs I would be breathless and tired out, and my heart would palpitate viclently. and I would have a feeling as though I was smothering. My appetite was poor, and my baby was suffering from my weakness. I was advised to try Dr. Willims' Pink Pills and got six boxes, and before they were all quite used I was like a different woman. My appetite returned; I regained my strength, and the work about the house no longer bothered me. As the result of my experience I would strongly urge all weak women and nursing mothers to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

FREDERIC HARRISON.

FREDERIC HARRISON.

Mr. Frederic Harrison, the famous leader of the Positivists, friend of Ruskin and Carlyle, was eighty years of age last October, and he came in from an eight-mile walk at tea-time with springy step and alert bearing. It was his ordinary daily exercise, and not at all in the nature of a birthday celebration.

Mr. Harrison is spending the evening of his days near Hawkhurst, in Kent, where he delights in kingarden and grounds, which he has made very beautiful. He rose on his birthday at 7:30, breakfasted at 8.30, and was engaged from 9.30 till luncheon-time with the morning newspapers, his correspondence, and his new book, "Autobiographic Memoirs." His mornings work included the writing of twelve letters. Arriving home at five o'clock after his walk, he spent half an hour in showing visitors round his garden. Then there was a little rest before dinner. At eleven it was beddime. An unbroken sleep of eight hours every night and an interest in every waking hour, that is Mr. Harrison's happy lot at eighty.

He is engaged on another work, "Among My Books." He writes about 1,500 words a day.

MY EYE!

In common with peasants, princes often suffer the annoyance caused by having something in the eye. Indeed, there is no section of the community that escapes the irritation. Sometimes, it is true, a person may not be aware that there is actually anything in the eye; but when there are the slightest indications of such a thing it is always well to make an examination. The most frequent site of the foreign body, according to a well-known doctor, is on the cornea, but it may lodge in the conjunctiva, which lines the inner surface of the lids, or may lie beneath the upper lid. The latter situation is frequently forgotten, and the person examining the eye may make a most thorough search of the cornea, etc., but omit to turn up, the upper lid. To delay having the eye attended to is dangerous, and a small, apparently inoffensive, foreign body is often the starting-point of some grave ocular trouble.

CHILDHOOD DANGERS.

No symptoms that indicate any of the ailments of childhood should be allowed to pass without prompt attention. The little ailment may soon become a serious one and perhaps a little life passes out. If Baby's Own Tablets are kept in the house minor troubles can be promptly cured and serious ones averted. The Tablets are guaranteed absolutely safe and can be given to the newborn babe as well as the growing child. Mrs. Arthur Drapeau, Mont Carmel, Que., says: "I can give Baby's Own Tablets to my little one without fear, well knowing the beneficial results that will follow their use." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NOW'S THE TIME

Now's the time to be a-doing,
If there's work that must be done
While the earth itself is wooing
Favors from the shining sun.
Not to-morrow; you may never
Hear the bells of morrow chime,
But for every brave endeavor
Now's the time!

Now's the time to be a-moving,
If in life you've any aim;
If you're anxious to be proving
What in merit is your claim.
Don't—ah, don't te-day postpone it
Is not idleness a crime?
If you have not overthrown it,
Now's the time!

Say not even. "I will do it Without failure by-and-by."

Not long ago Lord Kinnaird, who is always actively interested in religious work, paid a surprise visit to a mission school in the east end of London and told a class of boys the story of Samson. In concluding his narrative his Lordship added, "He was strong, became weak, and then regained his strength, enabling him to destroy his enemies. Now, boys, if I had an enemy, what would you advise me to do?" A little boy after meditating on the secret of that great giant's strength shot up his hand and exclaimed, "Get a bottle of 'air-restorer." The Woman who nags usually takes for her subject such trivial matters. It needs so little to upsether, and set her tongue wagging. Woo betide her household during a spell of wet, dirty weather! She is constantly on the alert for toose offenders who disregard doormats. A scratch on any of the bousehold furniture will make her fretful for a day, and an accident with the gravy on the clean tablecloth will rankle in her mind for a week. Annoyances come to the nagger which no other woman has to bearor so she thinks. She looks for trouble, so trouble comes to her. She is always nagging at someone. By some strange freak of Fate, it often happens that men who deserve good wives get those which come under another heading, and he scoundrels and the undeserving males get the model women. The husband of the nagger is frequently a very good fellow, who makes a model husband—or would, if will will be the story of Samson. matrimony."

There is an aristocratic club in London, the Bachelors' of Piccadilly, whereof the members who so far forgot their loyalty to the club as to marry are actually expelled and ostracized. The only saving feature of such expulsion is that by the payment of a fine of $100 the offending one may retain an honorary membership, but so far as active membership is concerned he is strictly out of it for the rest of his life.

There is a similar organization in Germany, the Junggesellen Club. Whenever there comes to the officials of this club any intimation that a member contemplates matrimony he is immediately summoned for trial in the club court, with the president as judge. The culprit is allowed to plead in extenuation of his offence, and upon his skill in presenting such plea depends the amount of his fine, which ranges from $100 to $1,000. The humorous feature of the fine consists in the application made. The money is devoted to a dinner, whereat all members appear in mourning attire. At the conclusion of the repast the president solemnly reads the sentence of expulsion, and the delinquent is led from the room amid the groans and lamentations of his cretwhile club members. An interesting article in the July number of our Canadian women's magazine is "Two Historic European Towns," by Katherine Hale. It describes beautiful Pisa, celebrated for the leaning Tower, and Monaco, the smallest country of Europe, in which is situated gay, wicked Monte Carlo. The report and analysis of the recent convention in London, Ont., of the National Council of Women gives an excellent idea of what the leading women of Canada think are most important in political and social movements.

Old Time Delicacles.

Swans are coming back into favor as a dish for the table. This reversion to the tastes of our forefathers may lead to a demand for other delicacles once held in high esteem. In the thirteenthe century the heron, the crane, the crow, the cormorant and the bittern were considered excellent food. But for some undiscovered reason the hare and the partridge were despised, and in the houses and of the hobbes neither was ever seen. Another dish favored by our ancestors was dillegrout. This must have been a special delicacy, for the lord of the manor of Addington held his tenure on the condition of his presenting the king every year with a dish "called dillegrout, and if fat be added then it is called malpigeryum."—London Standard.

Are like charity, for they cover a multitude of sins. They are like successful men, for they are always at the top and in the public eye. They are like a poor old man, for they are always worn out; and they are like women in our hours of trial and tribulation, for what would we do without them. The oldest thing in hats is felt. The greatest things in Hats are the bargains at FRED. WARD'S.

"Have you come across the Morgans?" asked Roy, "or any of our other companions at Balhoin?" In his heart he felt sure that the young Norwegian's visit was connected with Blanche Morgan. Frithiof knew this, and the question was like a sword-thrust to him. But he had great self-control, and his voice was quite steady, though a little cold and monotonous in tone, as he replied:

"I have just been to call on the Morgans, and have only just learned that their business relations with our firm are at an end. The connection is of so many years' standing that I am afraid it will be a great blow to my father."

Roy began to see daylight, and perceived, what had first escaped had passed over his companion since they parted on the Sogne Fjord; very possibly the business relations might affect his hopes, and make it?"

Buttermilk cheese is a new product obtained by curding buttermilk with heat, draining the curd and adding sait. Large amounts of buttermilk cheese, it would furnish a large supply of palatable food, equal in food value, pound for pound, to lean beefsteak. It can be sold profitably at half the price meat is.

To make buttermilk cheese the buttermilk is curdled by heating to 80 degrees, and left undisturbed for an hour. It is then heated to 150 degrees and after standing quiet for about an hour, the clear whey is drawn off the curd, and the latter is placed on a draining rack, which is covered with cheesecloth. Here it remains half a day or over night, until as dry as desired, when it is lastled with 1½ pounds of salt per it open and the standing of the same as the standing and covered with cheese can be made from buttermilk, from cream which was pasteurized before ripenening, or the buttermilk heeses can be made from buttermilk, from cream which was pasteurized before ripenening, or the buttermilk, from cream which was pasteurized before ripenening, or the buttermilk heese can be made from buttermilk, from cream which was pasteurized before ripenening, or the buttermilk heese can be made from buttermilk, from cream which was pasteurized before ripenening, or the buttermilk heese can be made from buttermilk process of cheesemaking, in either case insuring the same as the control of the control o

BRITAIN'S NEW LORD CHANCELLOR.

Lord Haldane, who has been Secretary of State for War since 1905, has succeeded Lord Loreburn on the Woolsack, and this fact leads the London Sphere to remark that the appointment meets universal approval. Readers of Campbell's "Lives of the Lord Chancelors" will know that learned and distinguished men have held that office, but we doubt if since the days of Francis Bacon, Lord Verulam, there has been any Lord Chancellor with so splendid an intellectual equipment as Lord Haldane. Readers of his essays, particularly those in "The Pathway to Realty," will know something of one side of his work. A great and versatile reader as well as a good lawyer, Lord Haldane is at home with overy aspect of philosophy and of literature, and he is equally at home with the best literary philosophical achievements in the German and the English languages. His father was a Writer to the Signet. He was born in 1856 and educated at the universities of Edinburgh and Gettingen. He was called to the Chancery Bar in 1879, and made a Q.C. in 1850. He first entered Parliament in 1835 as M. P. for Haddingtonshire.

happy author was being tried by drumhead court-martial, and before the Standing Committee of the Senate on Agriculture and Colonization.

At the outset the point is made that crop returns depend on soil and soil management. The pamphlet then goes on to deal with soil functions, requirements of crops, retation, cultivation, moisture, warmth, plant food, cultural operations and implements. These subjects are subdivided until the field of successful crop growing is well covered. Under crop rotations seven are described and explained, the true year rotation—hoed crop grain, hay—is highly recommended, nove especially for farms that include considerable areas of rough land fit for pasture, but not available for crop production. Farms that are mostly arable are better served by a four years' comrse, which adds one year's pasture to the three years' rotation mentioned. Any of the seven rotations described, if carefully followed and the cultural operations therewith performed at the right time and in the right way, are claimed by the crop production of any given farm, and at the same time increase but slightly, if at all, the cost of production of any given farm, and at the same time increase but slightly, if at all, the cost of production of any given farm, and at the same time increase but slightly, if at all, the cost of production of any given farm, and at the same time increase but slightly, if at all, the cost of production of any given farm, and at the same time increase but slightly, if at all, the cost of production of any given farm, and at the same time increase but slightly, if at all, the cost of production. The Poultry Industry of Canada
During the past session of the Dominion Parliament, Mr. A. G. Gilbert, Poultry Manager at the Central Experimental Farm, gave evidence before the Select Standing Committee on Agriculture and Colonization on the development of the poultry industry. This evidence, which includes an address followel by questions put to

The subject is dealt with under the following heads: The value of the poultry industry, how the industry is tending, the attitude of the farmer towards it, and the form of development best calculated to help the farmer.

Perfumes of Sympathy

Do not keep your sublime love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness; speak approving, cheering words while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them. The kind things you mean to do when they are gone, do before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If my friends have alabaster boxes laid away full of fragrant perfumes of sympathy and affection that they intend to break over my dead body. I should tather they would bring them out in my weary and troubled hours and open them that I may be refreshed and cheered by them while I need them. I should rather have a plain coffin without flowers, a funeral without an eulogy, than life without an eulogy, than life without and for burial. Post-morten kindness does not cheer the burdened spirit; flowers on a coffin cast no fragrance backward over the weary way. L. C. Ball, in Busy Man's Canada.

The Saw of the Mosculto.

The bill of the mosquito is a complex institution. It has a blunt fork at the head and is apparently grooved. Working through the groove and projecting from the angle of the fork is a lance of perfect form sharpened with a fine bevel. Besides it the most perfect lance looks like a hand saw. On either side of the lance two saws are arranged, with the points fine and sharp and the teeth well defined and keen. The backs of these saws play against the lance. When the mosquito alights, with its peculiar hum, it thrusts jits keen lance and then enlarges the aperture with th. two saws, which play beside the lance until the forked bill with its capillar/ arrangement for pumping the blood can be inserted. The sawing process is what grates upon the nerves of the victim.

It is pointed out that farmers are not taking full advantage of the high prices offered for strictly new laid eggs at all seasons of the year. The good profits from these are being secured chiefly by specialists who are often at the disadvantage of having to pay retail prices for feed. Much useful information is contained in this pamphlet which may be procured from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Heat From the Moon.

The moon is made of material supposed to be stone, since its specific gravity is about that of the rocks within reach here on earth. It reflects the light it receives from the sun to the earth, but in greatly weakened proportion. Therefore this light will affect plants in the same ratio. The effect is very small indeed. Heat energy sent from the sun to the moon is very nearly the same as that radiated to the earth, but the quantity sent from the moon to the earth is so small that it is negligible.

SKOBELEFF'S REVENGE.

SKOBELEFF'S REVENGE.

Insulted by the Czar the Russian Hero Tamed His Master.

During the Russo-Turkish war the day after the passage of the Danube had been made good the Emperor of Russia crossed the river to congratulate and thank his gallant soldiers. In front of a long, massive line formed on the slope below Sistova, awaiting the coming of the great white zar, stood Dragomiroff, Yolchine and Skoboleff, the three generals who had been the leaders of the successful attempt.

Dragomiroff, the divisional commander, the Emperor embraced and gave him the cross of St. George. He shook hands warmly with Yolchine, the brigade commander, and gave him, too, a St. George to add to the decorations which this cheery little warrior had been gathering from boyhood in the Caucasus and central Asia. Then the Emperor strode to where Skoboleff stood, and men watched the little seene with interest, for it was notorious that Skobeleff was in disfavor with his sovereign, and yet of him the camps were ringing with the story of his conduct of the previous morning.

Would Alexander maintain his umbrage or would he make it manifest that it had been displaced by Skobeleff's heroism? For at least a minute the Cxar hesitated as the two tall, proud, soldierly men confronted each other. You could trace in his countenance the struggle between disapproval and appreciation.

It was soon over, and the wrong way for Skobeleff. The Emperor

The time soon came to that gallant and brilliant soldier when he could afford to be magnaimous. As the campaign progressed he distinguished hinself again and again, so that his name became a synonym in the army for splendid daring as well as for opportune skill.

On Sept. 3 Skobeleff after exploit on exploit devised and led the storm of the Turkish position in Lofteha and drove his adversaries out of that strong place. On the following night at his own dinner table in the Gorni Studen headquarters the Emperor stood up and bade his guests to honor with him the toast of "Skobeleff, the Hero of Loftcha" It is not given to many men to earn a revenge so full and so grand as that.

Duties of the Claquers.

The claque has never flourished in English theatres, but is a powerful institution in France, where a "chief de claque" enjoys a recognized status and makes a comfortable income. It is a mistake to suppose that the only duty of claquers is to applaud. A well organized claque includes some members who have cultivated the art of infectious laughter. These "chatouilleurs" attend the lighter forms of drama and laugh so heartily and naturally that their neighbors join in and leave the house convinced that the play must be a funny one. Then there are the "pleureuses," who are paid to shake with sobs at the right moment during melodramas.—London Chronicle.

The soldanellas of the high Alpine meadows of Switzerland bore their way up through the coating of ice and snow by means of heat generated by the growing stem. Quite commonly, if the layer of snow is very thick, the flower will open without ever reaching the surface at all. The blossom is in no way affected by its strange surroundings. The space round the stem is, of course, thawed by the growing stem, which gives out heat.

TUNNELS UNDER RIVERS.

TUNNELS UNDER RIVERS.

They Are Built on a Plan Taught to Man by a Worm.

There are now many great rivers with tunnels under them. Even when one is suak to such a depth and carried so far along as the one under the Hudson at Storm King for the aqueduct it excites only a moment's wonder.

Such tunnels are generally driven under the water on the same plan, and that plan was taught to an engineer by a worm. The first attempt to make a tunnel under a river of any size was the Thares tunnel in London, which was built by the famous engineer Brunel. He had so much trouble with the water that oozed through that he came user giving up the job as impossible when he happened to see a place of ratten wood into which a worm had bored under water.

As the worm ate its way into the wood it left a deposit like lime all around the hole, and this got quite hard and waterproof, so that the worm could always get out the way it came, and the hole remained true and firm.

Brunel did the same thing. He made large steel tubes and pushed them into the earth, and then he forced cement in between the tube and the wet ground about it, so that it set as hard as a rock. All tunnels under water are built on the same plan now.—New York Sun.

The number of vessels that passed Suez in 1911 was 4,090, representing a net tonnage of 18,324,794, an increase of 436 vessels. There were less than 1,200 tourists. Wild Animal Roped and Carried Off in an Automobile.

A Swiss residing at Siantar, in the Island of Sumatra, has written home an account of the capture and transportation of a young wild elephant in a motor car by a resident of the town. The elephant, which was well roped, was driven to the nearest path in the forest, and with great difficulty the motor car arrived at the spot, a kind of platform replacing the body. The elephant was induced to mount the platform and was strongly secured to it. The trip to Siantar started, but difficulties at once arose, because the elephant, whose trunk was free, used his proboscis to examine in turn the chauffeur, the seats in front, the machinery, and finally the guiding wheel, his last manoeuver nearly upsetting the car, which was brought to a stop, as the journey was becoming dangerous. The elephant's trunk was then strapped to his body, and the car arrived at Siantar without further incident. This is probably the first time that a wild elephant has had a ride on a motor car.

Pills for Nervous Troubles.—The stomach is the centre of the nervous system, and when the stomach suspends healthy action the result is manifest in disturbances of the nerves. If allowed to persist, nervous debility, a dangerous ailment, may ensue. The first consideration is to restore the stomach to proper action, and there is no readier remedy for this than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. Thousands can attest the virtue of these pills in curing nervous disorders.

TEMPLE OF BAALBEK.

TEMPLE OF BAALBEK.

This Syrian Shrine Has the Largest Quarried Stones in the World.

Probably the largest stones ever used in any building are seen in the western wall of the great temple of Baalbek in Syria, and the problem is still unsolved as to the methods used in conveying them from the quarries and of placing them in position.

The quarries from which these blocks were undoubtedly cut can be seen about haif a mile to the southwest of the temple. The three stones he horizontally and form part of the outer wall of the building. They are not on the lowest part of the masonry, but are twenty-three feet above the first row of stones. Each stone is over sixty feet long, thirteen feet high and ten feet thick.

The most wonderful block of all still lies in the guarantees.

ty feet long, thirteen feet high and ten feet thick.

The most wonderful block of all still lies in the quarries, for something must have occurred to stop the work of separating it completely from the rock, and the great stone has lain there for centuries awalting completion. This stone is seventy feet long, fourteen feet high and thirteen feet wide. The three sides and part of the fourth have been beautifully chiseled and are smooth and even.—San Francisco Argonaut.

"Labby" Wanted a Place.

It is hard to think of Henry Labouchere in any other occupation than that of hitting heads and making aces, in a good cause, to be sure, but still with much gusto and impish glee. But we are assured by G. W. E. Rive sell in the Cornhill Magazine that Labouchere for a time cherished hit most bourgeois of ambitions—a place in the cabinet or in the high diplomatic services. When Gladstone organized his last cabinet, in 1892, Labouchere confidently expected that his vailing services to the party during six years of Tory ascendancy would be reward ed, but before Gladstone submitted his list of ministers to the queen be had received a direct intimation that the name of the editor of Truth must not appear there. On this point her imajesty was reported to be "very stiff." Later Labouchere was an ac tive candidate for the ambassandorship at Washington.

KEATS' LOVE AFFAIR.

KEATS' LOVE AFFAIR.

It Was But Another Disaster of the Last Days of the Poet's Life.

Keats' way of love was by no means a way of happiness. The object of his passion was a Miss Fanny Brawne, whom he had the fortune or misfor tune to meet at the Dilkes' house. She has become fairly well known in Keats' bibliography as "a brisk and blooming very young beauty of the far from un common English hawk blond type."

Her affection for Keats seems to have been real, but limited by a rather shallow emotional capacity. His for her was enfevered with doubts and questionings not only about the reality of his feeling toward her, but about his falling health and his uncertain prospects. Disease had already weakened him when he met her, and between the fire of disease and the fire of love his vitality was rapidly consumed. Love proved to be but another disaster to heighten the tragic suffering of the last eighteen months of his life.

When, finally, he went to Rome, accompanied by the artist, Joseph Sevof his life.

When, finally, he went to Rome, accompanied by the artist, Joseph Severn, he turned his back on love along with the rest of life. He died in February, 1821, and was buried in the Protestant cemetery, a place made so beautiful by the flowers that grow there the year through that it makes one "in love with death to think one should be buried in so sweet a place," as Shelley wrote not long before he, too, died.—New York Post.

Musical Conductors.

It is a significant fact that most of the great conductors have spent their apprentice years in mastering some solo instrument which they have used as a stepping stone to the broader and ultimate work of conducting an orchestra. Arthur Nikisch was at the beginning of his career a violinist in the royal orchestra at Vienna; Richard Strauss made his formal debut not only as lender of the Meininger orchestra, but as a planist also, playing a concerto by Mozart. Felix Weingartner, Dr. Muck, Emil Paur, Rothwell and Oberhoffer were first planists of distinction before becoming conductors. This list could also be carried back to Hans von Bulow, the prince of planists and conductors, and to Felix Mendelssohn, who inaugurated the famous Gewandhaus concerts.

Spoiled the Sport.

A gentleman from London was invited to go for "a day's snipe shooting," in the country. The invitation was accepted, and host and guest shouldered guns and sailled forth in quest of game.

After a time a solitary snipe rose and promptly fell to the visitor's first barrel.

The host's for

The host's face fell also.

"We may as well return," he remarked gloomily, "for that was the only snipe in the neighborhood."

The bird had afforded excellent sport to all his friends for six weeks.—London Answers.

CHINAMEN ARE TOUGH. "

CHINAMEN ARE TOUGH.

They Can Live Under Conditions That Would Kill a Whits Man.

Peculiar power to resist disease is a characteristic of the Chinese, according to Professor 18. A. Ross. For instance, out of ten children born in stance, out of ten children born in china about eight are doomed to die in infancy. The difference is due to the hardships that infant life meets with among the Chinese, and with such rigorous selection there results a stock displaying a peculiar hardiness. Living in the supersaturated, man stifled land, profoundly ignorant of the principles of hygiene, the masses have developed an immunity to noxious microbes which excites the wonder and envy of the foreigner.

"They are not affected by a recentle.

hygiene, the masses have developed an immunity to noxious microbes which excites the wonder and envy of the foreignes.

"They are not affected by a mosquito bite that will raise a large lump on the lately come foreigner," says Professor Ross. "They can use contaminated water from canals without incurring dysentery. There is very little typhold, and what there is is so attenuated it was long doubted to be typhold. All physicians agree that among the Chineses smallpox is a mild disease. The chief of the army medical staff points out that during the autumn maneuvers the soldlers sleep on damp ground with a little straw under them without any ill effects.

"Coolles, after two hours of burden bearing at a dog trot, will shovel themselves full of hot rice with scarcely any mastication and hurry on for another two hours. A white man would writhe with indigestion. The Chinese seem able to sleep in any position. I have seen them sleeping on piles of bricks or stones or poles, with a block or a brick for a pillow and with the hot sun shining full into the face. They stand a cramped position longer than we can and can keep on longer at monotonous toil unrelieved by change or break."—Chicago News.

MATHEMATICAL SIGNS.

MATHEMATICAL SIGNS.

MATHEMATICAL SIGNS.

Process by Which These Familiar Characters Were Evolved.

The sign of addition is derived from the initial letter of the word "plus." In making the capital letter it was made more and more carelessly until the top part of the "p" was placed near the center; hence the plus sign was finally reached.

The sign of subtraction was derived from the word "minus." The word was first contracted into mus, with a horizontal line above to indicate the contraction, which was a printer's freak that may be found in almost any book bearing a date earlier than the beginning of the eighteenth century. After the lapse of a long period of time the letters were omitted altogether, leaving only the short line so well known to all.

The multiplication sign was obtained by changing the plus sign into a character resembling the letter x. This was done simply because multiplication is but a shorter form of addition.

Division was formerly indicated by placing the dividend above a horizontal line and the divisor below. In order to save space in printing the dividend was placed to the left and the divisor to the right, with a simple dot in place of each.

The radical sign was derived from the initial letter of the word "radix."

The sign of equality is said to have first been used in the year 1567 by a sharp mathematician, who adopted it as a substitute for the word "equal to."

Enlightening a Poet.

The English poet Mr. Pewys told this anecdote, in which he claimed to have been the party of the second part. He said that he was talking to an old country woman on the occasion of the queen's jubiles in 1897. "What do you understand by the word 'jubiles'" he asked her. "Well," answered the old dame, "if you've been married fifty years and the man's alive it's a golden wedding. If he's dead it's a jubilee."

Ancient Cancer Curs.

An ancient oriental cure for cancer was to apply a live tood to the affected part. A well authenticated case of this form of treatment was that of the wife of a merchant of Supran. A live tood was strapped tightly over the diseased part, and, it was said, the woman was completely cured within a short time. It was a sacrifice upon the part of the toad, however, as it died after it had been on duty twenty-four hours.

The Best He Could Do.

"Mr. Addem," said a tightwad merwar to his sad faced bookkeeper, "I wish you would try to look a little more cheerful."

"I think," replied the bookkeeper, swallowing a big lump, "that for 80

FUN IN COMMONS.

Past Session Has Shown a Renais-sance of the Old Humor. When the late lamented John Barr, the Shelburne doctor, and member watch the proceedings of Pariament from the Press Gallery chronicled the passing of the last of the long line of humorists of the Laurier regime. A series of sessions, unrelieved by the aparkle of wit, was in sight. The turn of time's wheel, however, has brought into being a Parliament to which Barr is but a half-forgotten memory. A new line of youngsters wears the caps and bells.

The session just ended, the first of the Borden reign, has seen the development of humorists out of what was formerly regarded as somewhat raw material. In years gone by Frank Oliver, for instance, was seldom taken seriously. With the load of the Interior Department lifted from his shoulders by the electors of the Borden and the part of the month has displayed a lightness of louch in debate and a delicacy of irony in retort which has astonished political friend and foe alike. It was Frank who referred to a speech of George Bradbury, as "a series of premeditated inexactitudes."

Before touching on the new men who have shown indications of turning into "Bill Nyes" and "George Ades," a further glance over the old-timers may be permitted. Emmerson, the bushy-haired man from Moncton, displayed endurance in debate which staggered the tacitum Frank Cochrane. Visitors to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary years ago who went to the cell of the Valleyfield murderer, Shortis (of happy Lady Aberdeen memory), will remember that that interesting gentleman used to offer for sale little pieces of round cardboard, the exact size of a ton cent piece, on which he had laboriously written the Lord's Frayer. If Shortis ever wants a change of last session. The convict sould easily copy the speeches of the new Minister of Railways on his little piece of cardboard.

Those who followed the proceedings will remember the prominent part played by Rodolphe Lemieux, the ex-Postmaster-General, and for a few weeks the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. Lemieux never sat in opposition before. He was born politically with a silver spoon in his mouth, at the general elect return to their own schools as members of a Fifth Class.

The reports of the Boards of "Entrance" Examiners should, from year to year, be preserved by Trustees and parents who are really interested in the progress of their schools. Is your school represented

The Marmora Herald advocates the taking up of a Continuation Class is the Public School in that village taking up of a continuation Cales the Public School in that village. It says:

"Each year there are a number of pupils who pass their Entrance examinations here whose parents cannot afford to send them away from home for a number of years to secure a High School education. There are a very few openings for them to learn a trade or any kind of business and they are not old enough to leave home and start life for themselves. As a consequence they stay around home doing nothing for a couple of years, and by that time have forgotten most of what they learned in school and have also acquired idle habits which may be a detriment to them all their lives. If they could take up two or three years of High School work at home the parents could probably afford to send them away long enough then to qualify as teachers or for some other vocation.

"When the new addition to the school is completed there will be qualify as teachers or for some other vocation.

"When the new addition to the school is completed there will be plenty of room to take up Continuation Class work and the Board would then have a legitimate claim on the County for a substantial grant. This is a matter that is up to the School Board. It is certain the County will not give any grant of this kind until the Continuation class work has been undertaken, but on the other hand if the work is taken up the extra County and Legislative grants would mean that the work could be carried on at a very little additional cost to the ratepayers, and it would be of almost inestimable benefit to the village and surrounding country."

A Story of Horrors Told by Mile.

Marie Shkolnik.

Mile. Marie Shkolnik, who has recently arrived in London. England, after escaping from a Siberian prison, describes the sort of living misery to which prisoners are subject. Mile. Shkolnik received a senione of imprisonment for life as the count of the participation in a policical disturbance in that community. result of fier participation in a pointical disturbance in that community.

"Criminal and political offenders," she stated, "share the same punishment, the conditions being precisely the same for both classes. After being taken to Irkutsk by train, women and men in groups of from eighty to 160 set out upon the horrible march of from 150 to 200 miles to the prisons. They cover some twenty-five miles a day, resting at night in small wayside erections, which are full of vermin.

"We were given about 5d. a day with which to purchase food, but this sufficed to buy bread and water only, so that those who had no money of their own had to be content with that. Men were chained as they walked, but the women were allowed to go free, although the soldiers were extremely rough.

"The prison was over a hundred years old, having been built for them prisoners who were formerly required to work the gold mines in the vicinity. Here the women were hereded in parties of thirty and forty in cells built to accommodate a dozen people.

"There are always a number of children, for feeding whom no provision is made until two years have elapsed, the children meanwhile sharing the starvation allowance of their parents. The women are set to work making mattresses. All their work, including the sorting of wool, is done in the room in which they live, and as a result deaths from consumption are so frequent that no notice is taken of them. The women are entirely in the hands of their captors, and none escape violation, either by the officials or the Cossacks."

Mile. Shkolnik owed her escaped by a means which she cannot divulge, lest her story should involve punishment for those concerned.

The chief warder of the prison was suspected of having aided her in her escape. It was discovered that he had a considerable sum of money in the bank, and it was suggested that she had purchased her freedom at the price of £3,000. Mile. WOMEN AS LION TAMERS.

Have More Patience and Meet with

A woman seems especially adapted for training animals, both domestic and wild, as her motherly instinct is an esential factor; animals, like children, requiring patience, sympathy, vigilance, intelligence and firmness. In the case of the lion women are more successful than men as trainers and have fewer accidents.

Claire Heliot, for nine years a star lion tamer, but now retired, who greatly loved her twelve lions, declares that the most potent features in the art of animal training is the ability to impress the fact that the trainer can be depended upon to deal kindly with her charge. She began training lions when 22 years old. First she would feed them with meat from her hands, then she would sit for days three hours at a time in the cage with an iron bar and a whip in her hands, getting closer each day. In a months' time she patted their manes. In four months she taught them tricks and then exhibited them. She had twelve in her group. She never whipped her lions, only made believe by cracking the whip over their heads. Though a German, this trainer always apoke French to her lions, the language being quicker and thus more commanding. She loved her lavorite lions to play with.

TWO FAMOUS BANDS.

TWO FAMOUS BANDS.

Coming from England for the Canadian National Exhibition.

Two famous bands from England will make the musical attractions at the Canadian National Exhibition this year something long to be remembered. The Scots Guards Band from Buckingham Palace, the third of this famous brigade of bands brought across the ocean by the Exhibition people, will alternate with the Besses o' Th' Barn, which all lovers of band music recognize as Britain's best brass band. Two such musical attractions have never before been brought together on the continent.

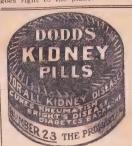

THE NAPOLEON HAT.

Almost every season brings for-ward some millinery creation on the order of the Napoleon hat, a type which is most becoming to some piquant faces. This little French shape shows nothing but a single handsome feather mount in bril-liant colorings.

It Eases Pain.—Ask any druggist or dealer in medicines what is the most popular of the medicinal oils for pains in the joints, in the muscles or nerves, or for neuralgia and rheumatism, and he will tell you that Dr. Thomas' Eelectric Oil is in greater demand than any other. The reason for this is that it possesses greater healing qualities than any other oil.

WITHOUT AN ARGUMENT.

"Do you have any trouble get-ting your daughter to practice her music?"

ARSENIC IN VEGETABLES

ARSENIC IN VEGETABLES.

Arsenic has been found as a normal constituent in man and animals, and now Drs. Jadin and Astrug, two French biologists, show that it may be derived from edible plants and fruits. They examined thirty-nine vegetable substances, and obtained arsenic from all, the quantities ranging from 0.25 part per million in almonds and beans. Other vegetable matters, containing arsenic are the common cabage, the turnip, the potato, cultivated mushrooms, black truffles, Japanese rice, red haricots, greypeas, split peas, lentils, artichokes, salsify, chicory, lettuce, spinach, salsify, chicory, lettuce, spinach, bazelnuts, filberts, chestnuts, apples, pears, oranges, pineapples, and bananas.

Barrister, Who Revels in His Rags, Refuses to Work.

A man in rags, who proved to be of good family and once a barrister at the court of Marseilles, France, was arrested in Paris for being without visible means of support.

"Why don't you work?" he was asked by the magistrate.

"I'd on not like to work," was the ingenious reply.

The prisoner went on to say that although he was a lawyer in a good position, social obligations and the necessity of wearing good clothes became inksome to him twenty years ago. He left Marseilles, his family, his friends, and respectability, to tramp the roads of France, where he could not breathe in the trammels of convention.

After some years he got tired of tramping, and enlisted in the Foreign Legion under a false name. He remained with the corps for ten years, and then came back to France to tramp the roads again, begging as he went.

The magistrate offered to find this incurable vagabond food and lodging in a home, but he refused, and was therefore sent to prison.

"Yes, but now-a-days that's no longer any proof."

Clean Stomach, Clear Mind.—The stomach is the workshop of the vital functions and when it gets out of order the whole system clogs in sympathy. The spirits flag, the mind droops and work becomes impossible. The first care should be to restore healthful action of the stomach and the best preparation for that purpose is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. General use for years has won them a leading place in medicine. A trial will attest their value. The Pill That Leads Them All.—
Pills are the most portable and compact of all medicines, and when easy to take are the most acceptable of preparations. But they must at test their power to be popular. As Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are the most popular of all pills they must fully meet all requirements. Accurately compounded and composed of ingredients proven to be effective in regulating the digestive organs, there is no surer medicine to be had anywhere.

Harvesting Alsike Clover For

Harvesting Alsike Clover For Seed

The time is now drawing near, if not already here in some parts, when alsike may sustain a heavy loss by not harvesting it soon enough. There is uneveness in the blooming of the plants and also in the ripening of the heads, the lower parts maturing seed first. Hence, in no case should alsike be left until it appears to be fully ripbefore cutting.

Examine the heads frequently after the seed has formed and when most of them show signs that the seed will shell out, cut it as soon as possible. It should be cut when damp with dew or rain to prevent shelling and when the straw is more or less green; the fodder then is quite palatable and nutritious.

obtended then is quite palatable and nutritious.

The reaper with four or five rakes is perhaps the best machine to cut it with when the straw is long enough. If the straw is short a table fixed to the cutting bar of a mower may be used. Where a bunch accumulates it is lifted or shoved off by a fork or rake behind the mower. If a mower is used without the table attachment there will likely be more loss from tramping and raking. When hauling to the machine in the field or storing in the barn it is advisable to have a canvas spread over the shelvings of the wagon. This saves a lot of seed.

Increasing Cost of Living.

A despatch from Ottawa says:
The ateady advance in prices continued during June, the Labor Department's index number having advanced from 138.9 in May, previously the highest recorded, to 136.9 in June, as compared with 150.1 in June of last year. The numbers, it will be understood, are percentages in each case of the average price level prevailing during the ten years 1890-1899, the period selected by the Department as the standard of comparison throughout its investigation into wholesale prices of some two hundred and fifty commodities of representative character. The estimate of the department for the month of June, therefore, shows prices to have been nearly 37 per cent, higher in that month than was the average for the decade 1890-1899. The chief increases during June were in animals and meats, fodders, fruits and vegetables, hides and leathers, there having been slight decreases in dairy products, prepared fish, sugars, coal and coke.

Number of Deaths in Industrial Accidents in June Last.

A despatch from Ottawa says: According to the records in Canada of the Department of Labor, sixty two persons were killed and 249 injured during the month of June in the course of their employment. A comparison with the records of the previous month and with June, 1911, shows that there were twenty-eight fewer fatalities than in May and one hundred and thirty-less than in June, 1911. Of the non-fatal accidents there were eight more recorded than in May and one hundred and thirty-seven more than in June, 1911. There were but two accidents recorded involving the death of more than one workman, one of which occurred on June 1, by which eight construction work near Stones' Corners, Ont., and the other a head-on collision of railway trains near Nipigon, Ont., in which four railway employes were killed.

Work on the Transcontinental is Being Rushed in North Ontario

Major R. W. There has been no change in the grades, he declared, that will effect the hauling capacity of a locomotive either eastbound or westbound to the extent of a single pound. Neither has he any intention of making any such change.

Major Leonard has just completed a long trip, in which he went as far west as the Yellowhead Pass in company with Hon. Agriculture a new edition of that exhaustive and practical treatise Sheep Husbandry in Canada' which received such a warm reception some four years ago. This work of 126 pages, which constitutes a report as well as a helpful bulletin of instruction, covers the history and condition of the sheep industry in every province, pointing out the weak points and offering useful information for the guidance of older shepherds as well as a those who are just beginning, or desire to begin, raising mutton and wool. In this work the author, who is a trained sheep man, brings out clearly the great advantages of keeping sheep from the dual standpoint of direct profit in cash returns, and the even more important indirect one of cleaner farms and better crops. Then there is a special section, 'From the Block to the Table' designed to popularize the consumption of mutton and lamb. Other sections deal with weed destruction by sheep, diseases, wool, housing, enemies, breeds and breeding, feeds and feeding, and other important matters. Under 'The Industry in the Different Provinces' some startling new facts, concerning the profits made from sheep, are brought out. It is shown that a flock of about 150 ewes worth 86 each, after housing, feeding and care were charged against them, gave in 1911 a profit of more than $900. This occured on a Manitoba which are worth framing. A large issue has been printed to be supplied free to those who apply for it to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The Real Meaning

The Real Meaning

Although it has been six months before the public there are people in Ontario who do not understand yet what "banish the bar" means. We know this, because several intelligent inquirers have asked us to explain.

The idea has grown up in some quarters that banish the bar means nothing more than doing away with the bar as a place for selling liquor; that, for instance, a buffet, with light teatables served with drinks at tables, where men sit at their case, would be within the law. Also that hotels would be at liberty to serve their guests with liquor at meals. These ideas are quite wrong. Banishing the bar means doing away with the sale of liquor entirely on hotel premises. The only way a hotel guest could get liquor would be to send for it to a liquor shop and have it brought in in the original package.

The confusion of thought on the subject has probably arisen from the fact that "banish the bar" is such a compact slogan that it needs amplifying lest it become obscure.—Toronto Star.

TALE OF A ROYAL RELIC.

Window Panes Upon Which Henry et Navarre Had Not Written.

Mrs. Andrew Lang, writing in Blackwood's, tells of a Frenchman in whose chateau was a window on which Henry. IV. had once scratched the inscription: "Dieu garde de mai ma mie; Ce 22 de Septembre, 1589.—Henry." The inscription when M. Eudel first saw it was in two lines of big, clumy letters. Two years later, being again in the neighborhood, he revisited the chateau, when he was astonished to find that the inscription was now in three lines, with the letters much more nearly uniform. After some effort he got hold of the secret. For forty years the inscription on the window had been the guide's pride and pleasure till, in one fatal moment of inattention on his part, an Englishman had cut the pane of glass out of its setting and walked away with it in his pocket.

The poor guide hurried to tell his master what had befallen him. The owner of the chateau assured him that he accident was of no consequence and could soon be put right. And so it was! A plees of glass of the same tone as the other panes was procured and fastened lightly in its place. The guide received orders to turn his back so as to allow visitors to read the inscription—or, if they wished, to steal it. But it was necessary for the man te preceive in the nick of time what was going on and only consent to shut his syes on the receipt of a handsome tip eyes on t

the Noted Fillbuster.

William Walker, the noted fillbuster and soldier of fortune, was born in Nashville, Tenn, on May 8, 1824. For a time he was an editor in Naw Orleans and in 1850 went to California. In the summer of 1853 he organized an expedition for the conquest of the Mixican state of Sonora. He enpured several small towns; but, his provisions and ammunition running short, he crossed the border into the United States and surrendered to the government officials. He was tried at San Francisco for violating the neutrality laws, but was acquitted. Walker's next venture was an invasion of Nicaragus, where he was for a time successful and had himself proclaimed president. Later he was driven from the country. Late in 1858 he started with a force of adventurers for Honduras, but a shipwreck caused a suspension of the expedition.

In June, 1800, he made a second attempt and captured the town of Truxillo, but was compelled to fice and subsequently surrendered to the captain of the British sloop of war Iscarus, by whom he was handed over to the Honduran government. He was condemned by court martial and on Sept. 12, 1860, was shot to death at Truxillo.

Old Parr's Possible Age.

One of the last services Dean Stanley did for Westminster abbey was to cause the almost effaced inscription over the celebrated old Parr's grave to be recut. It is as follows: "Tho: Parr of ye County of Salop. Borne in AD 1483. He lived in ye reigns of Ten Princes viz., K. Edw. 4, K. Edw. 5, K. Rich. 8, K. Hen. 7, K. Hen. 8, K. Edw. 6, Q. Ma., Q. Eliz., Ka. Ja. & K. Charles. Aged 152 yeares, and was Burled Here Novemb. 15, 1635."

The "old Countess of Desmond," who is said to have died at the age of 140, is mentioned by Lord Bacon. Archbishop Usher and Sir William Temple. The first assures us that "she did dentige (renew her teeth) twice or thrice, casting her old teeth, and others coming in their place."—London Graphic.

the C.N.E. this Year.

The Siege of Delhi will be the historic spectacle at the Canadian National Exhibition this year.

There is no more terribly picturesque scene in English history than this sketch from the great Indian mutiny. The rich and varied ostumes of the natives of different castes mingled with the uniforms of the English officers give to it color that cannot fail to delight the eye, while the tragic drama cannot fail to be of enthralling interest. Every detail is to receive the strictest attention to make this the greatest of the many historical spectacles that the Canadian National has become famous for.

So the other day she came down to dinner in a sombre black frock. "Why on earth, dear," said Mr. Rich, eyeing her gown with distaste, "are you wearing that frock? Why, it's half-mourning," "Of course it's half-mourning," replied the lady, with much meaning. "Don't you always say when you come home from the office that you are half dead?"

TIPPING IS ANCIENT.

In Shakespeare's Time It Used to Be Called Vallsgiving.

in Shakespears's Time it Used to Bs Called Vallsgiving.

The word tip is of compartively modern origin, as it used to be valls, a shortened form of avails or profits. We speak now of the avails of an estate or of a business transaction. A hundred years ago they called gratuities to servants or waters vails. Dr. Johnson's dictionary, published in 1755, defines vails as "money given to servants as a perquisite or present rather than in the way of wages." Dean Swift mentions a person "who bean Swift mentions a person "who servaness, besides valls, amounted to $13." Shakespears uses the word in the same sense where he makes one of the fishermen in "Perricles" say, "But bark you, my friend, 'twas we that made up this garmont and there are certain condoiments, certain vails." He wanted to be condoied with a tip.

The practice probably continued to grow after Shakespeare's time, for late in the eighteenth century a philanthropist and reformer of the period published a tract against indiscriminate almsgiving, and denouncing the vails practice as demoralizing both to those who gave and to those who accepted the gratuities. This early reformer was Jonas Hanway (1712-1786), who, after writing a book of eastern travel, undertook to reform some of the sooial vices of his day. He denounced vallsgiving and practiced what he preached by refusing to pay more than the stipulated price for reforements or for any kind of service or to give gratuities to servants who received wages. But his crusade died with him, and valls still survive under the oflous name of tips.—Indianapolis News.

ANTS HAVE FIVE NOSES.

The Sense of Smell Is Very Important to These Insects.

The Sense of Smell is Very Important to These Insects.

In their autennae, or feelers, ants have dive noses, each of which has its own duties to perform.

One nose tells the ant whether it is in its own nest or that of an enemy; another nose discriminates between edors of anis of the same species, but of differ 1 colonies; a third nasal organ serva; the purpose of discerning the scent said down by the anis own feet, so that it may be able to retrace the way quite easily; a fourth nose smells the larvae and pupae, and the fifth nose detects the presence of an enemy.

If an ant be deprived of a certain nose, it will live peaceably with enemies, but if it retains its fifth nose it will fight the alien to the death. There is a difference in the functions of nose one and nose five, although they appear to be somewhat alike.

This sense of smell does not come till the ants are three days old. If, therefore, ants only twelve hours old are placed among others belonging to different colonies, they will grow up quite amicably and not understand that they are a mixed lot, because they will have grown up with deas of scent in accordance with their surroundings. The sense of smell to thurn is as important as the sense of sight to human beings.

Placid Hindu Servants.

Hindoo servants are the most imperturable people in the world. You may throw one downstairs or pat him on the back. He accepts both with exactly the same expression of countenance. The Indian's religion is at the bottom of all his acts, all his feedings. He eats, sleeps, moves and has his being according to religious formula, and his doctrine of reincarnation forms his whole philosophy of life. The fact that you are the master now is due to the fact that you have been the servant in some prevencernation. He is the servant in what and the only chance for him to be reborn in the master's position is to learn all the lessons of his present incarnation. He takes everything philosophically. It is all a part of the day's work.

Kept a Watch on His Men.

Sir Edward Harland was the founder of the great Belfast firm of shipbuilders. His lynx eyed vigilance was a legend at the works. It was said that he used to survey the workmen through a telescope from the windows of his residence, Ormiston. All the men felt that his eye was on them. A riveter who has a spite against a fellow worker on a ship can let a riveting hammer fall, apparently by accident, upon his victim. It was gravely alleged that Harland once by his telescope caught a riveter in this act and, as soon as he arrived at the works, walked up to the man and sacked him.

Glassy.

"I suppose," said the man in the yellow cost, trying to be chummy, "it doesn't hurt your glass eye when you get anything in it?"

"Does it look as if it would ever be likely to have a pane in it?" responded the other frigidly. And he gave him a glassy stare.

"Miss Pry is the most inquisitive sort of girl. There is nothing doing but she manages to have ber dinger in it?" "I notice she hasn't got the dinger in an engagement ring yet."—Baltimore American.

If you wish to appear agreeable in society you must consent to be taught many things which you know already.
